Establishing a New Academic Program

I. Policy

New academic programs may be developed and implemented at the United Arab Emirates University when there is strong evidence of need for the program and when resources sufficient to assure program quality can be committed. New programs must be consistent with the University's vision, mission and strategic plan, as well as market needs. Proposals for new programs should be developed through appropriate college processes and must be reviewed and approved through the University's procedures.

In the context of this policy, the term "new academic program" is defined as a new degree (undergraduate or graduate), a new major, a new minor, or a new certificate or diploma program. It does not include a new concentration within an existing major.

II. Application

This policy shall apply to all academic units of the United Arab Emirates University.
