Abstract:

This study examines in-depth of the legal provisions of Companies Law relating to the Limited Liability Companies, and determine what the law ought to be in order to protect the rights of limited liability company's creditors and at the same time strike a balance between the different interests of the parties involved. Furthermore, this study evaluates the legal recognition of the one-person limited liability company and addresses the main additional guarantees that should be adopted to enhance the general guarantee for the creditors of such company. Finally, the study explores the Legal Control on the partner's acts and the difficulties facing the One Person Company under the current law.

Overall, the main focus of the study is to primarily answer the question of whether there is any real need for a more specific legislation to regulate the One Person Company in the United Arab Emirates.
