

The College of Graduate Studies and the College of Law Cordially Invite You to a
Master Thesis Defense
Entitled

THE INSURANCE OF THE SELL MATCH ACCURACY TO THE ELECTRONIC SALES CONTRACT

By

Afra Jumah Mualla

Faculty Advisor

Dr.Nouri Khater, Private Law Department

College of Law

Data & Venue

2:00 PM

Thursday, 08 April 2021

Online

Abstract

This research aims to study the insurance of the sell match accuracy to the electronic sales contract specification produced by the electronic sales that emerged of the internet cause. It seeks to include the commercial business that takes place between the contractors by electrically exchanging the data.

This has provided a variety of features. It has able businessmen to avoid traveling from one country to another for meetings with their partners and customers, which saves them a lot of time and money to promote their products and services.

Neither less to say that the electronic commerce field is a new phase to the law field, as the current laws and regulations are not equipped enough to confront this new field in the international trade relations, and despite the current legislative situation, the international organization began to issue the model laws that fit with the nature of the electric transitions. which has led some countries legislators to add adjustments to the current laws and regulations, Whether the other half of the countries have drafted an independent law that organizes the electronic commercial transactions,

However, the reality of the situation has shown the importance of drafting new legislation for this new electric world.

This research includes three sections:

The first sections incorporate the guaranteeing the seller's commitment to conforming to the specification under the civil transitions law through one of the most critical legal options that the buyers own, which are the option of inspection which includes the proof and the projections then it deals with the guarantee of the accordance with the rules of delivery, the method of the delivery and its expenses and the consequences of breaching its contents of commitment of delivery time and place of delivery. The second section of the research includes the guarantee in the Vienna agreement regarding conditions and the guarantee claim. The last chapter includes suggestions and recommendations to ensure adequate protection for both the buyer and the consumers based on the exposure option's availability per the extent of its effectiveness in local and international laws agreements.

Keywords: The option of inspection - Insurance of the sell - The rules of delivery - Vienna agreement.