

The College of Graduate Studies and the College of Law Cordially Invite You to a Master Thesis Defense

Entitled

UNCONSTITUTIONALITY IN THE UNITED ARAB EMIRATES (A COMPARATIVE STUDY)

By

Hamad Abdullah Ali al-saedi

Faculty Advisor

Dr. Tariq Fathi El-Sayed, Public Law Department

College of Law

Data & Venue

03:00 PM

Thursday, 23 April 2020

Online

Abstract

One of the reasons that led me to pay attention to this issue is that there is no doubt in the sub-thrust of constitutional policy, a form of judicial oversight of constitutional laws and regulations, which he considers to be ways to move judicial oversight of the constitutionality of laws, as it is an important guarantee and I give them their constitutional rights to them, which proves that achieving The rules of justice and fairness for litigants.

Through studying this legal aspect, which the legal systems prepare for them is the best in the field of oversight of the constitutionality of laws, as attention and focus in this study have been on judicial oversight by sub-payment of individuals as a means of moving constitutional oversight through explaining the definition framework for the subject of sub-payment under the constitutionality of laws in The United Arab Emirates and other country systems, with explanation of the historical development of the sub-payment without the constitutionality of the laws, identifying the origin and development of judicial oversight through the sub-payment, as well as explaining the provisions regulating the sub-payment of the unconstitutionality of laws N, by clarifying the conditions for moving the lawsuit by sub-payment and determining the nature of the payment after the constitutional, determining the judiciary jurisdiction in overseeing the constitutionality, and determining the time for filing the lawsuit arising from the payment after the constitutionality, and the nature of the deadline for filing the lawsuit, which stops it, which stops correctly and completely accurately in In light of the texts mentioned in the Federal Supreme Court Law (Federal Law No. 10 of 1973 - regarding the Federal Supreme Court) and the legal texts in the United Arab Emirates, compared with other legislation to clarify the similarities and differences, and the aim is to clarify the right to leave It is important for us to argue that it is unconstitutional, since it is necessary to highlight this right and achieve it before the judiciary and enjoy it.

Key words: advancing unconstitutionality - the Federal Supreme Court - the Supreme Constitutional Court - the Constitutional Council