Job Description:	Graduate Trainee Programme (GT) Part of “Masar”, our Graduate Trainee Program (GT) is an 18 month development program, aimed towards preparing you for your first career step at du. We not only prepare you from a technical perspective but also help you develop self-management and self-awareness competencies. The program takes different forms of learning and developing, starting from classroom sessions to work placement and on the job training with coaching and assignments. We allow our young employees to expand the boundaries of their knowledge in order to build a portfolio that enables them to compete effectively in today’s challenging telecom environment. Our selection process starts with an assessment of your communication skills through a simple exercise of essay writing. This is followed by abilities assessment, followed by a group task in our assessment center to observe your interpersonal skills. You are scheduled for the final interview to meet your potential manager along with a national development department representative. We assure you that “Masar” will stretch you to your limits that are even beyond your thoughts. You are now taking the right decision to be our potential Graduate Trainee.
