Emirati Arabic successfully mapped out by researchers at United Arab Emirates University

Published on 03 May 2018

The Emirati dialect has, for the first time, been turned into a database to detect language disorders in children, and to benefit researchers from around the world.

A recent research project at the UAE University's Department of Linguistics, entitled Emirati Arabic Language Acquisition Corpus (EMALAC), has successfully resulted in its own copyrighted corpus of the Emirati Arabic language.
